

American U. Gets Grant of $80,000

American University's school of international service has been granted $80,000 by the Avalon Foundation to set up a training program for intelligence research and analysis.

Under the new program, students will be taught to evaluate information obtained through intelligence sources. The grant will be used to pay the salary of the program's director and to provide scholarships.